

THE HERPETOLOGICAL JOURNAL

Volume 2, Number 2

1992

CONTENTS

Full Papers

- |                                                                                                                                           |                                                                    |    |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------|----|
| Feeding strategies of the viper Vipera ursinii ursinii (Reptilia: Viperidae) in the Apennines                                      | U. AGRIMI &L. LUISELLI                                         | 37 |
| Phosphate and calcium level variations in the plasma of the snake Vipera aspis during the annual cycle and the reproductive period | M. ALCOBENDAS,J. CASTANET,E. MARTELLY &C. MILET        | 42 |
| Contribution to the thermal ecology of Testudo marginata and T. hermanni (Chelonia: Testudinidae) in semi-captivity         | M. PANAGIOTA &E. D. VALAKOS                                    | 48 |
| Sleep-like behaviour in the Galapagos tortoise ( Geochelone elephantopus )                                                         | F. E. HAYES,W. K. HAYES,K. R. BEAMAN &L. E. HARRIS JR. | 51 |
| Breeding patterns in a fringe population of fire salamanders, Salamandra salamandra                                                | M. R. WARBURG                                                      | 54 |
| Short Notes                                                                                                                        |                                                                    |    |
| New records of Moroccan herpetofauna                                                                                                      | J. MELLADO &J. A. MATEO                                        | 58 |
| Mycophagy in a fossorial microhylid Copiula fistulans in New Guinea                                                                | R. STOCKS                                                          | 61 |
| Book Review                                                                                                                        |                                                                    | 64 |